Part 1: Understanding the risks of the digital environment, especially those facing children

First, let's set the scene…

Technology was different in 1999

In 1999, when you took a photo it was on film (12, 24, 36)…

That you then took to the chemists…

In 1999, this is how you got on the Internet

...and nobody else could use the phone
Do you know these apps and challenges?

Part 2: Strategies for reducing risk and promoting safe behaviour

There are 2 ways of dealing with this…

Restriction

Education

The best resilience is a good parental/carer relationship

- Stay engaged- ask and find out about what they like doing online

- Have regular conversations, ask open questions

- Ask them for help – can they show you how to do something better online?

- Agree reasonable ground rules around device use/screen time etc (see family agreement)

- Do they know where to go for help if they experience something upsetting?

Where can I go for help?
